How to Use the Connecticut History Day Educator Handbook

The Educator Handbook includes a variety of tools to introduce and facilitate your students' participation in the National History Day® program.

This handbook provides a comprehensive National History Day Project Timeline and Resources document. Whether you are implementing History Day as a full-year, partial term, or after school club, you will be able to follow this Timeline to keep your students on track.

The Educator Handbook has information about workshops, a link to sample parent letters to assist you with your ongoing efforts of communicating with your students' families, the Connecticut Topics List, online resources for you made available by other History Day affiliates, research resources for your students, and ten complete lessons bringing your students from an introduction to History Day all the way through the project process and preparing for contest day.

The Student Handbook mirrors the Educator Handbook, making it much easier to guide your students.

We are proud to share many wonderful materials created by National History Day and other History Day affiliates across the country.

About Connecticut History Day

Connecticut History Day is sponsored by The Connecticut Democracy Center. Connecticut History Day, an affiliate program of National History Day®, promotes the study of history in schools – including public, private, and home schools – to create a higher degree of appreciation for the value of historical thought in students, educators, and community members who participate. The spirit of History Day is not based upon winning and losing, it is based on the encouragement of achievement, the recognition of excellence, and the positive critical evaluation of every student participant.

Connecticut middle and high school students choose a topic based on a yearly theme, complete historical research, and create projects of their own choosing for one of five Regional Contests across Connecticut. Students placing in the top four at the Regional Contests participate in the State Contest, held at Central Connecticut State University. Judges and program officials serve to encourage academic achievement and the building of positive self-esteem.

Student projects are evaluated by judging teams at Regional, State, and National levels. They present their projects, are asked questions by the judges, and receive evaluation sheets with constructive feedback. History Day entries, like history, are evolutionary in nature and it is the goal of the program to empower students with research skills, critical thinking skills, and outlets for creative expression, which will enhance their academic abilities in all areas of study.

Students in grades 6-8 participate in the Junior Division; students in grades 9-12 participate in the Senior Division. Students may choose to work alone or in a group of 2-5 students. Papers are the only one of the five categories in which students must work alone. Within each Division are 9 separate judging categories (Paper, Individual Documentary, Group Documentary, Individual Exhibit, Group Exhibit, Individual Performance, Group Performance, Individual Website, and Group Website). While websites and papers are due two weeks in advance of the Contest, students must attend the contest like the other three categories.

About National History Day® (NHD®):

NHD is a non-profit organization based in College Park, Maryland, that seeks to improve the teaching and learning of history. The National History Day Contest was established in 1974 and currently engages more than half a million students every year in conducting original research on historical topics of interest. Students present their research as a documentary, exhibit, paper, performance, or website. Projects compete first at the local and affiliate levels, where the top entries are invited to the National Contest at the University of Maryland at College Park. NHD is sponsored in part by HISTORY®, the National Endowment for the Humanities, the National Park Service, Southwest Airlines, the Crown Family Foundation, the Better Angels Society, and the Diana Davis Spencer Foundation. For more information, visit nhd.org.

About the Connecticut Democracy Center:

Connecticut History Day is an education program run by The Connecticut Democracy Center (CTDC), formerly the Connecticut Public Affairs Network (CPAN). CTDC is dedicated to strengthening civic engagement among people of all ages, backgrounds and political persuasions by providing comprehensive and educational programming and outreach centered on civics, citizenship and civil discourse. In addition to Connecticut History Day, CTDC manages the Kid Governor® program for fifth grade students as well as educational and public programming at Connecticut's Old State House and manages the Connecticut Network in Hartford. For more information on CTDC and its programs, please visit ctdemocracycenter.org.

Online Educator Resources

There are a number of resources available to help you lead your students through the History Day experience.

National History Day website (<https://nhd.org/>)

- Explore the Create a History Day Project section of the website, as there are resources, rubrics, and examples of each of the five categories.
- Browse the 100+ topics in the Bring History into Your Classroom section to find lessons and informational pieces on a diverse range of historical subjects.
- Check out the Improve Your Teaching Skills section for videos, webinars, content resources, and lesson plans.
- Make sure to sign up for the NHD teacher email list so you get all the latest updates!
- The First Year Participant page is a one-stop-shop location for many of the frequently used resources for students and teachers.

Connecticut History Day website (www.historydayct.org)

- Learn about and sign up for free educator workshops and in-class workshops for students.
- Resources for educators, including the 2024 theme book, this handbook, and a handbook for student participants, are listed.
- Digital resources for students are available on the Student page.
- The link for students and teachers to register for the contests, registration deadlines, project submission information, and logistical information about each of the contests is listed.
- Teachers and students can purchase exhibit boards online that meet the NHD size guidelines.
- Please make sure to sign up to get emails from the CHD State Office.

Connecticut History Day Social Media:

- The CHD Facebook, X, and Instagram pages are active and updated regularly with content.

Minnesota History Day (<https://www.mnhs.org/historyday>)

- The Educators pages have a lot of resources. Check out the Teacher Framework and the Master Teacher Network for lesson plans and resources.
- The EL Curriculum page is loaded with sample text sets, templates and worksheets to assist English learners and other students who may need additional reading supports.

California History Day (<https://www.nhdca.org/>)

- Check out the toolkit page for lesson plans.

NHD and the Library of Congress collaborated to create two instructional tools: Guide to Student Research and Historical Argumentation and Finding, Analyzing, and Constructing History: A Research Guide for Students. These are comprehensive collections of lessons, materials and resources designed to guide students through the inquiry process and the historical thinking skills needed to complete a History Day project. Please check out these materials and download your copies here.

The State Office is here to help! Please reach out if you have questions at info@historydayct.org.

History Day Contests

There are four levels of competition: School, Regional, State, and National.

2024 Contest Season Information

Currently we are making plans for the contests, with the Regional Contests being held in February and March 2024 and the State Contest in May 2024. The 2024 season will be in-person, and all participants will be expected to attend on contest day.

NEW for 2023-24 School Year:

Due to the continued growth of student participation in CHD, beginning this year there is a limit on the number of projects a school can send to a Regional Contest: 4 projects per school for each category. (Spread across the 9 categories, that would be a total of 36 projects per school).

CHD is adopting this policy for a few reasons:

- To provide for fair and equitable contests that are not numerically dominated by one or two schools.
- To combat the large number of students who are "no-shows" on contest day after we have planned for their participation.
- There is a limit to the size of contests that our hosts can accommodate. Post Covid, the costs associated with holding a contests have significantly increased.
- CHD is committed to holding educational and enjoyable contests which is only possible with a strong pool of volunteer judges. Post Covid, judge recruitment is a challenge.
- The policy of limiting the number of entries per school is one that is widely used by National History Day affiliates.

If possible, CHD staff will open additional slots to schools who have reached their 4 entry per category limit. A decision about additional slots will be made once registration for the Regional Contest is complete.

How should a school determine which students attend the Regional Contest? Schools vary in their approach—from allowing students to self-select to holding a school-level contest in which top finishers represent the school. Either way, holding a school-level event is a wonderful opportunity for recognizing student work and provides an opportunity for students to receive valuable feedback from peers and teachers prior to a Regional Contest. If you need to hold a school contest, look no further than our SCHOOL CONTEST Google Folder, which includes a detailed School-Level Contest Kit and tools you'll need to prepare your judges.

Registration for the regional contests will open in November 2023. Please monitor our CHD Contest Registration Page for instructions and updates. Teachers must register before their students can do so. If you think you will have students competing, we encourage you to register as soon as it opens.

Regional Contests

Connecticut is divided into five History Day Regions:

- Fairfield
- Mansfield
- New Haven
- Norwich
- Torrington

Specific towns are assigned to each Regional Contest – information about town assignments can be found on the CHD website at <https://www.historydayct.org/regional-contests.html>. Exemptions may be granted to students with valid schedule conflicts who are unable to participate in their assigned Regional Contests. Permission to switch Regional Contests must be secured from the State Coordinator at rebecca.taber@ctdemocracycenter.org.

The Regional Contests take place from the end of February to early April. Students who place in the top four at a Regional Contest are invited to participate in the State Contest. Students are encouraged to improve their projects using comments from the judges prior to the State Contest. Approximately 1,500 students participate annually in the Regional Contests.

The reason why Regional Contests are spread out over a number of weeks is due to schedule restrictions of the host location and to allow the CHD staff to attend all of the contests. Sometimes students feel that going early is an advantage/ disadvantage as do students with a later contest date. Remind students that everyone at the Regional Contest will be in the same boat. There are positive and negatives to each situation.

State Contest

The Connecticut History Day State Contest is held in early May at Central Connecticut State University in New Britain. The top two winners in each category and division are eligible to enter the National History Day Contest with 3rd place winners serving as alternates. In addition, several special prizes are awarded each year for entries in a variety of historical subject areas.

National Contest

National History Day is held at the University of Maryland, just outside of Washington, D.C., where more than 2,500 students from around the world gather for five days to present their work. In addition to History Day, students have many opportunities to visit historic sites in and around Washington, D.C. The National Contest is usually held the third week of June. Monetary prizes, scholarships, and special prizes are presented to National award-winners. The Connecticut History Day staff plans activities for Connecticut students during National History Day, including guided tours of Washington, D.C. sites.

Connecticut History Day Regions

Students should participate in the Regional Contest to which the town their school is located as assigned.

Student Workshops

Connecticut History Day offers a number of free in-class workshops to assist teachers and students with the History Day process. To schedule a workshop with a member of the Connecticut History Day staff, please fill out the form found on our website:

<https://www.historydayct.org/workshops.html>.

To best accommodate school policies and the safety of students and staff alike, CHD is able to present in-person or virtual workshops.

Introduction to Primary Sources Workshop

Are your students new to working with primary sources? This workshop introduces students to the various types of primary sources, how to analyze them for effective research, and why they are a crucial part of the research process. This workshop involves small group work and is best for middle level students or those who have never worked with primary sources. (Time: approximately 45 minutes)

History Day 101-Introduction to History Day Workshop

Introduce the History Day program to your students by “traveling” on a road trip for success with our CHD staff. This workshop introduces the process of creating a History Day project. Students will have stops along the journey to learn about the theme, categories, writing a historical argument, and building their project, and plenty of time for topic shopping and research. This workshop is designed for students at any grade level who are new to History Day. (Time: approximately 45 minutes)

2024 NHD Theme: Turning Points in History Workshop

Each year, NHD selects an Annual Theme that serves as a lens for exploring an historical topic. This workshop delves into this year's theme, Turning Points in History, and helps students consider the variety of topics that can be explored. Students can brainstorm topic ideas with staff and discuss how they align with the 2024 Theme. This workshop will be most effective if offered early in the year before students have settled on their topics. (Time: approximately 45 minutes)

Historical Argument & Thesis Statement Workshop

This workshop reviews the basics for conducting historical research with primary and secondary sources and the steps involved with crafting a good historical argument and thesis statement. Students will discuss examples of thesis statements and have hands-on time with writing a draft of their own thesis statement. This workshop will be the most effective if students have selected a topic and started their research but have not yet begun drafting the written portion of their project. (Time: approximately 45 minutes)

You Be The Judge Workshop

Judging History Day projects is a great way to learn about how to apply the rules and rubric to a project. Students will have a pre-visit activity to help them learn/review the NHD rules. On the day of the workshop, students will review the NHD evaluation criteria and then work in small groups to judge a project. This workshop is suitable for all grade levels and is recommended to be scheduled once students are familiar with the basics of completing a History Day project. (Time: approximately 45 minutes)

History Day 102—Project Check-in Workshop

Are your students on track with their projects? Do they need suggestions for research and project creation? A History Day educator will meet with your students, providing suggestions and strategy for their CHD journey. This workshop can be conducted in-person or virtually; if done virtually, we ask that you schedule separate workshops for your students by category. (Time: 45-60 minutes depending on the number of students)

Field Trip to Connecticut's Old State House

Exploring Turning Points in History at Connecticut's Old State House:

Want to get your students excited about this year's National History Day Theme of Turning Points in History? Book a field trip to Connecticut's Old State House in Hartford and take a guided tour of this 1796 National Historic Landmark and former state capitol. The tour will illustrate the various actions and events of Connecticutans that led to turning points in history. Visit ctoldstatehouse.org for field trip information and fees. Tour may be booked in conjunction with a free on-site CHD workshop.

To book a field trip, call 860.240.5340 or email OSHSchools@ct.cga.gov

Choosing a Connecticut Topic

Encourage your students to consider a Connecticut topic related to the 2024 National History Day theme. Connecticut's museums, heritage societies, libraries, and other cultural attractions are eager to welcome you and your students. For a suggested list of local organizations please see pages 48-52. Many of these organizations have on-site and digital archives, so if your students can't visit in person, they may still be able to access their resources.

Why choose a local topic?

- It's easier to find sources
- Students can visit places associated with their topic
- Studying local history excites students about the place where they live
- Students can view national historic events through a local lens

Encourage your students to talk with the librarians at your school or local public library. They are wonderful resources for conducting research and can direct your students to resources and databases and may be able to request materials on their behalf.

Each year, the CTDC staff creates a list of Connecticut topics that relate to the NHD Annual Theme. The 2023-24 Topic List is now available. There are many Connecticut resources available to your students, and you can find information on the Annual Theme page on the CHD website.

Curriculum Connections

Connecticut History Day has many connections with the Connecticut Social Studies Frameworks and Connecticut Core Standards. Depending on the topic(s) selected, students and classrooms may find more curriculum connections than listed.

Connecticut Social Studies Frameworks Connections, Grades 6-8:

- INQ 6–8.1 Explain how a question represents key ideas in the field.
- INQ 6–8.2 Explain points of agreement experts have about interpretations and applications of disciplinary concepts and ideas associated with a compelling question.
- INQ 6–8.3 Explain points of agreement experts have about interpretations and application of disciplinary concepts and ideas associated with a supporting question.
- INQ 6–8.4 Explain how the relationship between supporting questions and compelling questions is mutually reinforcing.
- INQ 6–8.5 Determine the kinds of sources that will be helpful in answering compelling and supporting questions, taking into consideration multiple points of view represented in the sources.
- INQ 6–8.6 Gather relevant information from multiple sources while using the origin, authority, structure, context, and corroborative value of the sources to guide the selection.
- INQ 6–8.7 Evaluate the credibility of a source by determining its relevance and intended use.
- INQ 6–8.8 Identify evidence that draws information from multiple sources to support claims, noting evidentiary limitations.
- INQ 6–8.9 Develop claims and counterclaims while pointing out the strengths and limitations of both.
- INQ 6–8.10 Construct arguments using claims and evidence from multiple sources, while acknowledging the strengths and limitations of the arguments.
- INQ 6–8.11 Construct explanations using reasoning, correct sequences, examples, and details with relevant information and data, while acknowledging the strengths and weaknesses of the explanations.
- INQ 6–8.12 Present adaptations of arguments and explanations on topics of interest to others to reach audiences and venues outside the classroom using print and oral technologies (e.g., posters, essays, letters, debates, speeches, reports, and maps) and digital technologies (e.g., Internet, social media, and digital documentary).
- INQ 6–8.13 Critique arguments for credibility.
- INQ 6–8.14 Critique the structure of explanations.
- INQ 6–8.15 Draw on multiple disciplinary lenses to analyze how a specific problem can manifest itself at local, regional, and global levels over time, identifying its characteristics and causes, and the challenges and opportunities faced by those trying to address the problem.

- INQ 6–8.16 Assess their individual and collective capacities to take action to address local, regional, and global problems, taking into account a range of possible levels of power, strategies, and potential outcomes.
- INQ 6–8.17 Apply a range of deliberative and democratic procedures to make decisions and take action in their classrooms and schools, and in out-of-school civic contexts.

Connecticut Core Curriculum Connections, Grades 6-8

- CCSS.ELA-Literacy.RH.6-8.1 Cite specific textual evidence to support analysis of primary and secondary sources.
- CCSS.ELA-Literacy.RH.6-8.2 Determine the central ideas or information of a primary or secondary source; provide an accurate summary of the source distinct from prior knowledge or opinions.
- CCSS.ELA-Literacy.RH.6-8.3 Identify key steps in a text's description of a process related to history/social studies (e.g., how a bill becomes law, how interest rates are raised or lowered).
- CCSS.ELA-Literacy.RH.6-8.4 Determine the meaning of words and phrases as they are used in a text, including vocabulary specific to domains related to history/social studies.
- CCSS.ELA-Literacy.RH.6-8.5 Describe how a text presents information (e.g., sequentially, comparatively, causally).
- CCSS.ELA-Literacy.RH.6-8.6 Identify aspects of a text that reveal an author's point of view or purpose (e.g., loaded language, inclusion or avoidance of particular facts).
- CCSS.ELA-Literacy.RH.6-8.7 Integrate visual information (e.g., in charts, graphs, photographs, videos, or maps) with other information in print and digital texts.
- CCSS.ELA-Literacy.RH.6-8.8 Distinguish among fact, opinion, and reasoned judgment in a text.
- CCSS.ELA-Literacy.RH.6-8.9 Analyze the relationship between a primary and secondary source on the same topic.
- CCSS.ELA-Literacy.RH.6-8.10 By the end of grade 8, read and comprehend history/social studies texts in the grades 6-8 text complexity band independently and proficiently.

Connecticut Social Studies Frameworks Connections, Grades 9-12:

- INQ 9–12.1 Explain how a question reflects an enduring issue in the field.
- INQ 9–12.2 Explain points of agreement and disagreement experts have about interpretations and applications of disciplinary concepts and ideas associated with a compelling question.
- INQ 9–12.3 Explain points of agreement and disagreement experts have about interpretations and applications of disciplinary concepts and ideas associated with a supporting question.
- INQ 9–12.4 Explain how supporting questions contribute to an inquiry and how, through engaging source work, new compelling and supporting questions emerge.

- INQ 9–12.5 Determine the kinds of sources that will be helpful in answering compelling and supporting questions, taking into consideration multiple points of view represented in the sources, the types of sources available, and the potential uses of the sources.
- INQ 9–12.6 Gather relevant information from multiple sources representing a wide range of views while using the origin, authority, structure, context, and corroborative value of the sources to guide the selection.
- INQ 9–12.7 Evaluate the credibility of a source by examining how experts value the sources.
- INQ 9–12.8 Identify evidence that draws information directly and substantively from multiple sources to detect inconsistencies in evidence in order to revise or strengthen claims.
- INQ 9–12.9 Refine claims and counterclaims attending to precision, significance, and knowledge conveyed through the claim while pointing out the strengths and limitations of both.
- INQ 9–12.10 Construct arguments using precise and knowledgeable claims, with evidence from multiple sources, while acknowledging counterclaims and evidentiary weaknesses.
- INQ 9–12.11 Construct explanations using sound reasoning, correct sequence (linear or non-linear), examples, and details with significant and pertinent information and data, while acknowledging the strengths and weaknesses of the explanation given its purpose (e.g., cause and effect, chronological, procedural, technical)
- INQ 9–12.12 Present adaptations of arguments and explanations that feature evocative ideas and perspectives on issues and topics to reach a range of audiences and venues outside the classroom using print and oral technologies (e.g., posters, essays, letters, debates, speeches, reports, and maps) and digital technologies (e.g., Internet, social media, and digital documentary).
- INQ 9–12.13 Critique the use of claims and evidence in arguments for credibility.
- INQ 9–12.14 Critique the use of the reasoning, sequencing, and supporting details of explanations.
- INQ 9–12.15 Use disciplinary and interdisciplinary lenses to understand the characteristics and causes of local, regional, and global problems; instances of such problems in multiple contexts; and challenges and opportunities faced by those trying to address these problems over time and place.
- INQ 9–12.16 Assess options for individual and collective action to address local, regional, and global problems by engaging in self-reflection, strategy identification, and complex causal reasoning.
- INQ 9–12.17 Apply a range of deliberative and democratic strategies and procedures to make decisions and take action in their classrooms, schools, and out-of-school civic contexts.

Connecticut Core Curriculum Connections, Grades 9-10

- CCSS.ELA-Literacy.RH.9-10.1 Cite specific textual evidence to support analysis of primary and secondary sources, attending to such features as the date and origin of the information.
- CCSS.ELA-Literacy.RH.9-10.2 Determine the central ideas or information of a primary or secondary source; provide an accurate summary of how key events or ideas develop over the course of the text.
- CCSS.ELA-Literacy.RH.9-10.3 Analyze in detail a series of events described in a text; determine whether earlier events caused later ones or simply preceded them.
- CCSS.ELA-Literacy.RH.9-10.4 Determine the meaning of words and phrases as they are used in a text, including vocabulary describing political, social, or economic aspects of history/social science.
- CCSS.ELA-Literacy.RH.9-10.5 Analyze how a text uses structure to emphasize key points or advance an explanation or analysis.
- CCSS.ELA-Literacy.RH.9-10.6 Compare the point of view of two or more authors for how they treat the same or similar topics, including which details they include and emphasize in their respective accounts.
- CCSS.ELA-Literacy.RH.9-10.7 Integrate quantitative or technical analysis (e.g., charts, research data) with qualitative analysis in print or digital text.
- CCSS.ELA-Literacy.RH.9-10.8 Assess the extent to which the reasoning and evidence in a text support the author's claims.
- CCSS.ELA-Literacy.RH.9-10.9 Compare and contrast treatments of the same topic in several primary and secondary sources.
- CCSS.ELA-Literacy.RH.9-10.10 By the end of grade 10, read and comprehend history/social studies texts in the grades 9-10 text complexity band independently and proficiently.

Connecticut Core Curriculum Connections, Grades 11-12

- CCSS.ELA-Literacy.RH.11-12.1 Cite specific textual evidence to support analysis of primary and secondary sources, connecting insights gained from specific details to an understanding of the text as a whole.
- CCSS.ELA-Literacy.RH.11-12.2 Determine the central ideas or information of a primary or secondary source; provide an accurate summary that makes clear the relationships among the key details and ideas.
- CCSS.ELA-Literacy.RH.11-12.3 Evaluate various explanations for actions or events and determine which explanation best accords with textual evidence, acknowledging where the text leaves matters uncertain.
- CCSS.ELA-Literacy.RH.11-12.4 Determine the meaning of words and phrases as they are used in a text, including analyzing how an author uses and refines the meaning of a key term over the course of a text (e.g., how Madison defines faction in Federalist No. 10).

- CCSS.ELA-Literacy.RH.11-12.5 Analyze in detail how a complex primary source is structured, including how key sentences, paragraphs, and larger portions of the text contribute to the whole.
- CCSS.ELA-Literacy.RH.11-12.6 Evaluate authors' differing points of view on the same historical event or issue by assessing the authors' claims, reasoning, and evidence.
- CCSS.ELA-Literacy.RH.11-12.7 Integrate and evaluate multiple sources of information presented in diverse formats and media (e.g., visually, quantitatively, as well as in words) in order to address a question or solve a problem.
- CCSS.ELA-Literacy.RH.11-12.8 Evaluate an author's premises, claims, and evidence by corroborating or challenging them with other information.
- CCSS.ELA-Literacy.RH.11-12.9 Integrate information from diverse sources, both primary and secondary, into a coherent understanding of an idea or event, noting discrepancies among sources.
- CCSS.ELA-Literacy.RH.11-12.10 By the end of grade 12, read and comprehend history/social studies texts in the grades 11-CCR text complexity band independently and proficiently.

Lesson One: Introduction to National History Day

GOAL: Students will understand the National History Day program and what is involved in participating in National History Day

- I. Objective: Students will understand the National History Day program and what is involved in participating by watching the Connecticut History Day introductory video, reviewing the possible categories of participation, browsing the Get Started page on the NHD website and reading the rulebook.
- II. Procedures
 - a. Start of Class: Students will be posed the question as an entire class: “What do you know about National History Day?” to get a feel for their understanding of the program and what their prior knowledge about participating is.
 - b. Students will watch the Connecticut History Day promo video (5 minutes) to see and hear about the History Day experience from students, teachers, and coordinators.
 - c. Students will read the Basic Category Information.
 - d. Students will begin to explore on their own the National History Day program by navigating to the Connecticut History Day website. Students should also explore the National History Day Website and the “Create a History Day Project” page, the possible categories for projects, and the National History Rule Book.
 - e. Students will complete the National History Day Rule Book Scavenger Hunt activity to familiarize themselves with the rules.
 - f. You may wish to send home the first letter to parents, introducing them to the History Day program.
 - g. Remind students to review and complete the Introduction to National History Day Checklist in their handbook.
- III. Materials
 - a. Computers/Internet either for groups or the class
 - b. Basic Category Information
 - c. National History Day Rule Book Scavenger Hunt activity
 - d. NHD Rulebook
- IV. Evaluations
 - a. Participation in class discussion about National History Day
 - b. Active research and inquiry into the National History Day program
 - c. National History Day Rule Book Scavenger Hunt
 - d. Completion of the Introduction to National History Day Checklist

Basic Category Information

There are five presentation categories: paper, exhibit, performance, documentary, and website. Your presentation category should best represent your skills as a researcher and fit well with the topic.

For more information about the categories, visit the NHD Contest Rules & Evaluation page.

Paper	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Composed of introduction, body and conclusion. • Between 1,500-2,500 words (including quotations and explanatory end/footnotes). • May use footnotes or endnotes. • May include an appendix. • Annotated Bibliography and Process Paper are required.
Exhibit	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Visually appealing. • 500 student-composed word limit (not including quotations). • Incorporates a variety of photos, documents, materials/artifacts, and audio-visual elements effectively. • Size limit: 40 in. W x 30 in. D x 6 ft. high. • Not limited to a tri-fold display. Three-dimensional and multi-sided exhibits are permitted as long as they fit within the size limits. • Annotated Bibliography and Process Paper are required.
Performance	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Ten-minute time limit. • Script should be focused on your thesis and include historical references, quotations, etc. • Should be complete with appropriate costumes, blocking, and set. • Students are permitted an extra five minutes before to set up and five minutes following the performance to pack up and interview with the judges. • Annotated Bibliography and Process Paper are required.
Documentary	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Ten minute time limit. • Use film, audio, photos, video-editing software, and recording equipment effectively. • Topic should have an ample availability of still photos and video clips. • Interviews are permissible but should be conducted with people who offer primary source insight and not historians. • Brief source credits are required at the end of the documentary. • Annotated Bibliography and Process Paper are required.
Website	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 1,200 student-composed word limit (not including quotations). • MUST be completed within the NHD WebCentral platform. • Should incorporate photos, videos, audio clips effectively. • Should utilize your understanding of web design to effectively present your project. • Annotated Bibliography and Process Paper must be integrated as PDFs into website. ★ Students wishing to complete a website will need to register with NHD WebCentral, granting access to a unique URL and the web building platform. This should be done early in the project completion.

National History Day Rule Book Scavenger Hunt

This activity is designed for students to read and explore the National History Day® Rule book.

Directions: Open a new tab for the NHD Rule Book and carefully read through the questions and respond to each with the appropriate information.

1. NHD® Contests have two divisions. In which division will you compete this year?
2. a. NHD categories permit both INDIVIDUAL and GROUP entries except for which category?
b. What is the maximum number of students permitted in a GROUP entry?
3. Research for NHD projects includes secondary and primary sources. List two examples from the rule book for each.

SECONDARY SOURCE	PRIMARY SOURCE

4. NHD discourages interviews with this type of person. Why do you think this is added to the rule book?
5. Following the regional contest, one of your group members decides to not continue with the competition. Can your group replace this student?
6. You and your partner have chosen a topic similar to both of your individual projects from last year, but your teacher tells you that you cannot use that information. Why can you not use last year's research?
7. You need help with your project. Give two examples of how a teacher or parent/guardian can provide reasonable help.
 - a.
 - b.

8. Your group is completing a project on your favorite sports team. Can you wear jerseys when meeting with the judges?
9.
 - a. What are the THREE required written materials for all categories?
 - b. Can these items be in a binder or folder?
10. When writing the annotations for your bibliography, what are the two questions you should answer?
 - a.
 - b.
11. The PAPER category word count is ____ to ____ words. Besides your own words, what else must be included in your total word count?
12. You want to incorporate sound effects in your PERFORMANCE. Who is permitted to run our equipment/device?
13. Your group wants to reenact a historical event in your DOCUMENTARY. Can you use other classmates as extras when you film the reenactment?
14. You have decided to create a multi-sided rotating EXHIBIT.
 - a. What are the maximum dimensions for your project?
 - b. What must be included in the measurements?
15. You've chosen to include media on your WEBSITE. You have two media clips totaling 3:19 and a link to a live stream of an animal rescue. What changes will you need to make before the first contest?

Lesson Two: Understanding the Theme Turning Points in History

GOAL: Students will understand and define the 2024 National History Day theme Turning Points in History.

- I. Objective: Students will understand and be able to define the 2024 National History Day theme Turning Points in History by participating in a discussion about what the term means, begin researching different moments in history where an idea, event, or action has directly or indirectly caused change, and complete a writing assignment about the theme.
- II. Procedures:
Start of Class: Students will begin class with a discussion about the 2024 National History Day theme Turning Points in History
 - a. Begin by asking questions like: “What is a turning point, and what factors contributed to its development?” They can think of a turning point as a personal decision in the life of one person or a political choice affecting millions. It could also be an event or an idea with global or local consequences. It could even be a single person whose actions inspire or affect others. Either way, they will need to think about how that turning point emerged and changed. “What impact did it have on the people who experienced it, and how did they affect it?”
 - b. Students will view the 2024 National History Day Theme Video and complete the companion worksheet.
 - c. Students will read the Introduction to the theme (pg. 4-6) in the 2024 National History Day Theme Book. You may wish to assign one or more of the topic articles for further reading or exploration.
 - d. Students will browse through suggested local history topics for Turning Points in History compiled by Connecticut History Day.
 - e. Either in class or for homework, students will write a response to the questions, “What makes something a turning point rather than an important event from the past?” and “Consider a turning point in history. Why did that turning point develop? How did it create change?” and bring to class the next day.
- III. Materials:
 - a. 2024 National History Day Theme Book
 - b. 2024 Turning Points in History Connecticut topic list
 - c. 2024 National History Day Theme Video and companion worksheet
- IV. Evaluations:
 - a. Active participation in discussions
 - b. Participation in inquiry lesson on NHD topics
 - c. Completion of written response
 - d. Completion of Understanding the Theme Checklist

Turning Points in History Theme Video Companion Worksheet

Use this worksheet to gather ideas and questions you have about this year's theme.

PART 1: BEFORE VIEWING

Consider what you think the term means. Use the box on the left to describe or draw what comes to mind. Use the box on the right to write a dictionary definition.

TURNING POINT

DICTIONARY DEFINITION

PART 2: WATCH THE VIDEO 2024 Turning Points in History

As you watch the introduction of the theme video, fill in the blanks to help you understand the basic elements of this year's theme.

A turning point is an idea, action, or event that caused change, either _____ or _____ . Sometimes historical significance can be _____ in the moment. Other times, we understand the importance of that moment _____ in history.

A turning point can have an impact felt _____ or in one community.

A turning point can lead to change in:

S: _____

P: _____

E: _____

C: _____

As you proceed through the brief video, pause as needed to write down topic suggestions or questions you have. These may be helpful as you begin searching for your own topic ideas.

Events as Turning Points	Wars, social movements, revolutions, natural disasters ----- <ul style="list-style-type: none"> *Consider one event within a larger movement *Consider the long-term consequences of patterns in history *Consider how a large-scale event could be a turning point at the local level *Consider the positive and negative consequences resulting from devastation of natural disasters
Actions as Turning Points	Art, legislation, sports, protests, activism, speeches, reversal of a turning point, etc. ----- <ul style="list-style-type: none"> *Consider that an action can be by one person or a movement of millions
Ideas as Turning Points	----- <ul style="list-style-type: none"> *Consider how one idea builds on others *Consider how societies and individuals shift existing ideas to fit current needs *Consider why some ideas become turning points while other fade *Consider what societal factors allow new ideas to take hold *Consider scientific discoveries and innovations

PART 3: POST VIEWING

What are other words that have similar meaning to Turning Point? (These synonyms may help you when searching for topics.)

While turning points can be positive or negative, they are often both. How might this affect the various perspectives of a turning point?

Here are some questions to consider when you are researching a topic:

What factors led to the turning point? How and Why?

How did the turning point create change? What happened before and after?

What were the immediate and long-term consequences?

What impact did the turning point have on the people who experienced it?

How did they, in turn, affect the turning point?

Why was this turning point significant in history?

Consider your local history (town and state). What might be some organizations you could use to find examples of Turning Points in History in your community?

For more information about this year's theme, the topics mentioned in the video, and some research tips, check out the 2024 NHD Theme Resources: Turning Points in History.

Lesson Three: Choosing a Topic

GOAL: Students will pick a topic and category for their Connecticut History Day and National History Day project

- I. Objective: Students will pick a topic for their Connecticut History Day and National History Day project by researching periods in history that are of interest.
- II. Procedure
 - a. Start of Class: Students will discuss their writing assignment from the previous lesson about turning points.
 - b. Using their writing assignment, students will begin to research different historic time periods and moments in history that are of interest to them to see if they can find a topic. Facilitate the brainstorming by using a word web, mind map or gallery walk or playing a game such as Scattergories. You can also show them the Topic Narrowing and Selection video from MN History Day.
 - c. Students will continue to research topics that fit the theme of Turning Points in History until they find a topic of interest. Sample topics relating to Connecticut can be found online. For a broader range of topics, students can explore the NHD Topic Inspiration.
 - d. Give students the History Day Topic Funnel worksheet. Discuss the concept and sample topic funnels. You may want to complete a funnel together as a whole group or assign small groups to complete one with a few preselected topics. Once students are comfortable with the concept, they can complete the activity for their chosen topic.
 - e. Explain the importance of early research questions as these will help students with their initial research.
 - f. Once students have decided on a topic, have them complete the Choosing a Topic Worksheet. Students can conduct some early research and explain why they've chosen their topic. Remind them to record the sources for any information they find.
 - g. NHD allows students to create projects as a team or individually, and students will need to decide how they would like to create their projects - if there are multiple students in class who have an interest in the same topic, they may want to work together. Students may need to review the Basic Category Information from Lesson One.

- If students are creating a group project for Connecticut History Day, have them fill out the Connecticut History Day Group Project Contract Agreement.

History Day Topic Funnel

Topic ideas generally start out broad - and too big for a History Day project. If your topic is too big, it's going to be challenging to fit all the information that is needed into your project. We use the funnel to narrow our topics to a more manageable size.

The Group Team Leader will be the first person to register for the upcoming Connecticut History Day Regional Contest.

Choose your group carefully. The group agrees to share equally all work and expenses. Money may not be spent unless all group members are consulted. Each member of the group will receive the same grade for this project. Only those students named on this form are considered group members. All members must turn in a copy of this form signed by a parent or legal guardian to participate as a group. The Group Team Leader will be responsible for adding the project entry to the NHD Registration System even though all group members must register for the contest(s).

Lesson Four: Connecting to the Theme Turning Points in History

GOAL: Students will understand and connect their chosen topic to the annual National History Day theme of Turning Points in History

- I. Objective: Students will understand and connect their chosen topic to the annual National History Day theme of Turning Points in History by analyzing the topic and how it fits into the larger context of history.
- II. Procedure
 - a. Start of class: students will reexamine the National History Day theme Turning Points in History by reviewing the Theme Sheet and their previous written responses to the questions, “What makes something a turning point rather than an important event from the past?” and “Consider a turning point in history. Why did that turning point develop? How did it create change?”
 - b. Students will develop initial research questions for their topic. Show students the Research Questions video. Students should develop at least three research questions to begin their research. They can add these to the bottom section of the topic funnel from the previous lesson.
 - c. Using their chosen topic, students will complete the TIDES graphic organizer to understand the time period of their topic and how it fits into the context of history.
 - d. Students will use their Choosing a Topic worksheet and TIDES to begin analyzing the turning point and its historical impact and understand their topic’s connection to the theme. *Note: This step may take students more than one class session to complete the graphic organizer.
 - e. Students will complete and submit the Connecticut History Day Project Proposal for your feedback.

Turning Points in History

NHD invites you to select a turning point in history for the 2024 NHD Contest Season and explore how it turned the tide of history.

Turning Point:

T

Important Historical Context: What was happening when the turning point occurred?

I

Details: Who was involved? When did it happen? Where did it occur?

D

Events, Ideas, and/or Actions: What events, ideas, or actions make up your turning point?

E

Significance in History: What is the significance of your topic in the short term? In the long term?

S

Individual or Group: _____

How does your topic fit the theme Turning Points in History?

How did this turning point impact those involved?

What were the short and long term impacts?

Why is this topic significant in history?

Lesson Five: Researching Your Topic

GOALS: Students will conduct research through inquiry and investigation as it relates to their chosen topic and the annual theme, be able to identify potential bias in their sources, and practice academic integrity throughout the research and writing process.

Objectives: Students will apply good notetaking and writing practices to avoid plagiarism. Students will be able to conduct academic research by locating, analyzing and applying primary and secondary source materials to the development of an historical argument as it relates to their chosen topic and theme of Frontiers in History. Students will identify and consider potential bias within their sources.

This lesson will require several sessions, particularly if your students are new to academic research. For this reason, we have segmented this lesson to allow you to better address the prior knowledge of your students.

I. Academic Integrity:

- a. Ask students: “What do you think academic integrity means?” “What are ways to record information when conducting research?” “Why is it important to take good notes when researching a topic?” Allow students to share their thoughts.
- b. If students have previous experience with research and notetaking, a quick review of paraphrasing and quoting may be sufficient. If your students are new to research, you may want to share with them a sampling of notetaking styles and paraphrasing practice activities from the CHD Academic Integrity Educator Guide.
- c. Discuss with your students the citation style you want them to use. History Day permits MLA or Chicago styles, but your school may have a preference.

II. Primary and Secondary Sources

- a. Students will participate in a discussion about primary and secondary sources, and what the difference is. “What is a primary source?” “What is a secondary source?” “How can you tell the difference?” “What are the advantages and disadvantages of each?”
- b. Ask students to read the Researching Your Topic handout, focusing on the first two pages related to sources. You may also want to show students the NHD videos on primary sources and secondary sources.

- c. Ask students to complete Section One of the Primary vs. Secondary Sources activity. Go over the answers together. (If your students are familiar with primary and secondary sources, you can skip this section.)
- d. Students can complete Section Two of the Primary vs. Secondary Sources activity. As they are looking at the sources, encourage them to think about why each would be helpful and to consider what new questions the sources raise.
- e. Because there are many types of primary sources, the National Archives offers a variety of document analysis worksheets to fit the many types of sources. These worksheets are available for elementary, middle and high school students and are available in English and Spanish.
- f. For students new to working with primary and secondary sources, we recommend incorporating an activity providing some guided practice for analyzing primary sources. Here are some suggestions for lessons and materials:
 - The Library of Congress' Getting Started with Primary Sources offers numerous Primary Source sets and instructional materials.
 - Smithsonian National Museum of American History Engaging Students with Primary Sources

III. Identifying and Understanding Bias in Sources

- a. Ask students to read page three of the Researching Your Topic handout which reviews how to evaluate a source for:
 - Credibility
 - Accuracy
 - Balance
 - Support
- b. Show students the "Identifying Bias" video. Afterward, students will participate in a discussion about how to evaluate their sources. "How can you be sure the author can be trusted?" "How can you determine the accuracy of a source's information?" "Is a source balanced? Can you identify bias or tone?" "Does the source provide evidence to support the facts?"
- c. For students who are new to this level of research or who need a refresher, you can use the Identifying Bias Modeled Practice materials.

IV. Annotated Bibliography Introduction

- a. Students will learn about NHD annotated bibliographies and how to build an annotated bibliography using the NHD website (Note: the next lesson addresses the details of the annotated bibliography for History Day. In this lesson, you are introducing the concept and assisting students with creating a rough draft to track their research and how it helped further their understanding of their topic.)
 1. Show students the What is an Annotated Bibliography? \(Overview\) video.
 2. Inform students of the writing style they will be expected to follow. NHD permits either MLA or Chicago style; your school may have a preference. If you want them to use a particular citation generator, build in a portion of this lesson to introduce/review it with the students.

- NoodleTools is a great resource for students to compile their sources, notes, and annotations. Check to see if your school has an account. NHD Teachers are permitted to sign up for a single NHD season. Visit <https://www.noodletools.com/partners/nhd/> to learn more.
 - Some suggestions for free online generators:
 - Easy Bib
 - Cite Fast
 - Citation Machine
3. Introduce them to plagiarism checkers (PapersOwl, EasyBib, Grammarly).
- ❖ NOTE: If students are new to creating a bibliography, you may want to require periodic reviews of students' citations to ensure they are keeping track of sources, documenting the necessary source details, annotating how the source helped them. These check-ins will also highlight any concerns with time management or availability of resources.

V. Research Begins

- a. Students will begin to research their chosen topic and how it pertains to the theme using the Connecticut History Day Research Worksheet or another preferred note-taking method.
- b. Students can use the Resource Bank included in this handbook to find places to visit for their research. This list is meant to be a springboard for students.

VI. Materials

- a. CHD Academic Integrity Educator Guide
- b. Researching Your Topic by Indiana History Day
- c. Primary v. Secondary Sources activity
- d. Identifying Bias materials
- e. Connecticut History Day Research Worksheet
- f. National Archives Document Analysis Worksheets
- g. Resource Bank

VII. Evaluations

- a. Practice with notetaking and paraphrasing
- b. Participation in discussions about academic integrity, primary and secondary sources, and evaluating sources
- c. Continuous research on NHD topic
- d. Completion of annotated bibliography draft
- e. Completion of Researching Your Topic Checklist

Primary vs. Secondary Sources

Primary Source: provides first-hand evidence about a topic or event. The source comes from the time period of the topic or was created later by someone who had first-hand knowledge of the topic.

Secondary Source: created later by someone who did not experience the topic or event first-hand.

Section One

Classify each type of source as either (P) PRIMARY or (S) SECONDARY and explain your reasoning.

1. The story your grandfather tells you about his experience during the Vietnam Conflict.

P S Why?

2. A letter written by Nathan Hale to his mother about his efforts in the Revolutionary War.

P S Why?

3. Your social studies textbook.

P S Why?

4. A photograph of you and your friends at your 10th birthday party.

P S Why?

5. A newspaper from the day after the Titanic sank.

P S Why?

6. A mummy from ancient Egypt.

P S Why?

7. The information shared with you by the Old State House tour guide.

P S Why?

8. The Diary of Anne Frank—the published diary of a girl who experiences the Holocaust.

P S Why?

9. Give two more examples of a PRIMARY source.

a. _____

b. _____

10. Give two more examples of a SECONDARY source.

a. _____

b. _____

Section Two

Imagine you are researching child labor in America. For each source below, identify it as Primary or Secondary, and write at least one fact that you can gather from the source and one question you have about the topic or the source.

SOURCE	TYPE OF SOURCE	ONE FACT I LEARNED	QUESTION I HAVE
A newspaper article from Feb. 27, 1933 about children working in CT tobacco fields
A 1910 pamphlet giving child labor statistics
A 2021 article on the CT Explored website explaining the history of child labor in Connecticut
A 1914 photograph by Lewis Hine of girls working in a tobacco shed
A book written in 1994 about Lewis Hine's work to raise awareness of child labor in America. (view a preview of the book)

Wrap-Up: Write a brief summary of what you learned about child labor from these sources.

RESEARCHING YOUR TOPIC

You've chosen your topic! Your background reading means you should know a little bit about your topic. Now it's time to dig deeper. Keep in mind why you are doing the research:

- To learn more about your topic
- To develop and defend your thesis statement

TIPS FOR RESEARCH SUCCESS

Research takes practice. Here are some tips to make sure you're getting the most out of the time you spend on your project.

- Don't rely on the Internet! It's a great place to start, but it won't have everything. Other sources will typically give you more information and deeper analysis.
- Be critical. Not all sources should be trusted. Use great discretion on the Internet. Make sure your books are written by credible people. When in doubt, ask a teacher or librarian.
- Have balanced research. Use a variety of sources from different points of view. Sometimes sources will have conflicting information or missing parts.
- Use footnotes, citations and bibliographies in books and other secondary sources to find what primary and secondary sources the author used. See if you can find those sources for your own research!

SOURCES

Remember, not all sources are the same. Historians classify sources into two different categories – primary and secondary. It is not only important that you use both, but that you use a variety of each. While you research:

- Determine what types of sources you need.
- Consider conducting an interview.
- Find your sources.
- Analyze your sources.
- Cite your sources.

A primary source gives you first-hand evidence about your topic. They usually come from the time period or around the time period in which your topic takes place. Primary sources can also come from an interview with an individual who participated in or witnessed events from your topic or a memoir written later by someone who had involvement with your topic.

A secondary source is a piece of information that was created later by someone who did not experience first-hand or participate in the events you are researching. People who write or create these sources often use other secondary and primary sources in their own research.

SECONDARY SOURCES

Secondary sources provide a lot of information, including what types of primary sources are available. Below is a table to help you understand what types of secondary sources there are and what each type can provide you in your research.

	General Facts	Time Period Information	Historical Context	Sources other scholars have used	Opinions from Other Scholars	What scholars have already learned
History Textbooks	X	X	X
Encyclopedias	X
Documentaries		X	X		X
Websites	X	X
Scholarly Books			X	X	X	X
Scholarly journals				X	X	X
Scholarly Articles					X
Interviews with Scholars					X	X

DETERMINING THE QUALITY OF YOUR SECONDARY SOURCE

Before you get too deep into a secondary source, you'll want to be certain that it is a good, reliable source. Evaluate these four key points about your sources – are they:

- Credible
- Accurate
- Balanced
- Supported

Reprinted Courtesy of Indiana History Day

CREDIBLE

A credible source is one in which the author can be trusted to provide his or her own ideas and be able to back them up with evidence. If your source is a book, pay attention to the publisher as well as the author. Books published by universities tend to be safe.

Your source may lack credibility if:

- The author is anonymous.
- The source seems excessively negative or biased.
- The grammar is poor and words are misspelled.

ACCURATE

An accurate source will provide factual information that can be backed by evidence.

Tips for determining your source's accuracy:

- Look for information that is up-to-date, meaning that it will have more recent ideas and interpretations about your topic.
- Make sure the information in your source can be backed up by other sources. This is why a variety of sources is so important.
- Avoid sources that make vague or grand generalizations, for example: "Everyone felt the same way about this issue..."

BALANCED

Balanced sources are fair and reasonable in their discussion of the topic at hand.

To determine whether or not your source is balanced, take these points into consideration:

- Watch out for its tone and language. If a source resorts to name calling it could be biased and unreasonable.
- Look out for statements of excessive significance, for example: "This was the most important event ever."

SUPPORTED

Good sources are evidence-based, meaning their conclusions are supported by facts. You should be wary of a source that doesn't show its use of evidence or identify its sources.

Find out if your source is supported by:

- Checking the source's sources. Are the facts backed up with legitimate evidence?
- Looking at the source's bibliography. Are they using a variety of sources?

PRIMARY SOURCES

We know primary sources are generally from the time of the topic you're researching or are from someone who witnessed or participated in an event. These sources tend to be, but are not limited to:

- Diaries
- Manuscript collections
- Letters
- Photographs
- Government records
- Interviews
- Autobiographies

You can find primary sources in libraries and archives, historical societies, museums, or even from people you know!

WHY ARE PRIMARY SOURCES SO IMPORTANT?

- Primary sources provide insight into how people felt at the time, what their personal experience was, their emotions and their reactions.
- Primary sources can fill in holes left by your secondary sources.
- Primary sources can give you information that other people might not have yet found.
- Primary sources allow you to make your own interpretation and analysis rather than relying on what other people think or have said about your topic.

Primary sources help in ways that secondary sources can't, but that doesn't mean they're more important.

Keep in mind that:

- While primary sources can sometimes be more reliable than secondary sources, you still need to be just as critical when determining their credibility, especially if you found them online.
- It can be tricky to determine whether a source is primary or secondary. Be careful not to cite them incorrectly in your annotated bibliography.

Places to Visit

- Since wide research is valued by History Day (and is a judging criteria), your students' resources should go beyond online and book studies.
- Even if their topic is not local, there are several state organizations that serve as very helpful resources and are partners of Connecticut History Day.

TIP: Check online or email ahead of time to plan a visit with the research center. Your students should tell the facility they are researching for History Day. Some (that have admission fees) may provide History Day participant discounts.

Facility Name	Information
Connecticut Democracy Center at Connecticut's Old State House	Lead sponsor of Connecticut History Day . Connecticut's Old State House served as a state capital between 1796 and 1878. The building is open for tours. Location of State History Day office.
Connecticut State Library	A great place to research! The State Library has the State Archives and Museum of Connecticut History. Free admission.
Connecticut League of History Organizations (CLHO)	CLHO builds connections among those who preserve and share the stories and objects of our past. Great resource for finding local archives and museums to visit.
Hartford History Center at the Hartford Public Library	Archive focused on interpreting Hartford's past.
New Haven Museum	Co-sponsor of New Haven region. Great resource for researching earliest days of New Haven Colony, up through the 21 st century.
Archives & Special Collections, University of Connecticut Libraries	Archive collection ranges from the official records of UConn to records and papers of CT leaders and businesses to specialized rare book and non-print collections. Has a strong CT and New England focus.
Connecticut Historical Society	Museum, library, research, and education center. Admission to the Research Center is free for History Day students.
Local Museums and Historical Societies	Great primary source material can be found in your local museum or historical society. Examples include the New England Air Museum , Harriet Beecher Stowe Center , Kent Historical Society , Lebanon Historical Society , Litchfield Historical Society , New London County

	Historical Society , Salisbury Association Historical Society , Stonington Historical Society , Torrington Historical Society , and the CT River Museum to name a few.
Pequot Library	Library and archive focusing on the Southport/Fairfield area.
Fairfield Museum and History Center	Archive and Museum focusing on the Fairfield area.
Connecticut Sons of the American Revolution	CT SAR offers many online resources in addition to the three properties you can visit: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Nathan Hale Schoolhouse in East Haddam • Trumbull War Office in Lebanon • Nathan Hale Schoolhouse in New London
Mystic Seaport	Mystic Seaport offers visitors an exciting hands-on experience into maritime history. Additionally they offer extensive research tools on site and digitally.
Jewish Historical Society of Fairfield County	The Jewish Historical Society of Fairfield County provides historical and educational materials and information about the Jewish community of Fairfield County and serves the community through its membership and its archival resources.
Connecticut Landmarks	CT Landmarks manages nine historical properties across the state. Please check the website for specifics of historical periods and topics for each property.

Universities & Colleges	Connecticut has numerous institutions of higher learning which can serve as great resources. Some may have archives or allow you to use their library. Call first to check out the school's policy! TIP: Institutions of higher education also serve as great places to further research utilizing oral history. Libraries may have transcripts and/or recordings of interviews or they may note certain individuals in other sources that you could then reach out in order to conduct your own primary source interviews.  NHD has recently reaffirmed their position, dissuading students from interviewing professors or professional historians (unless an interview with him/her could qualify as a primary source). According to the NHD Rulebook: "You may be tempted to interview a professional historian about your topic. Do not. Your job as a researcher is to read that historian's work. Historians generally do not interview other historians. Instead consider using or conducting an oral history, if possible. Learn more at https://nhd.org/en/resources/guidelines-for-conducting-oral-history-interviews/
-------------------------	---

WCSU Library	Various museums, libraries, and university collections participate in this portal showing what each has available as well as making some resources available online.
Dodd Center for Human Rights (UConn)	In their pursuit to advance human rights knowledge and practice, the Human Rights Institute supports a number of important resources that aid in research, teaching, and engagement.
The Watkinson Library at Trinity College, Hartford CT	The emphasis is on local and cultural history, with manuscripts complementing the Library's rich printed holdings in Americana. The Watkinson Library Recording and Music collection is composed of early recordings, hand-cranked phonographs, and sheet music. The digital exhibit section is not to be missed!

Internet Resources

In addition, there are also several online resources to utilize. Students should also consider conducting research through the presidential libraries.

Website	Focus
ConnecticutHistory.org	A great starting point. Has a History Day page; is a great place to read secondary articles and get ideas for primary research.
The Association for the Study of Connecticut History (ASCH)	ASCH promotes the study of the history of Connecticut. It publishes the Connecticut History Review , the only academic journal devoted to the history of Connecticut and has a fall and spring conference. Many academic libraries carry the Journal; past issues may be purchased.
researchIT CT	Houses historic and current newspapers.
Connecticut Explored , the magazine of Connecticut History	Explore this website for information on back issues and free podcasts.
Connecticut History Illustrated	A great resource for history-related digital resources of libraries, archives, museums, galleries, historical societies and other CT heritage institutions. Includes a variety of material, from documents to images, from maps to audio and video.
Connecticut Digital Newspaper Project	A great resource for finding historically significant CT newspapers. They have been digitized from microfilm of newspapers published between 1836-1922.
Connecticut's Old State House Programs	Connecticut's Old State House offers recordings of programs on a variety of topics with speakers who are authorities in the subject. The topics range throughout history and can be a good resource for students.

Connecticut Network (CT-N)	Connecticut Network offers recordings of programs on a variety of topics with speakers who are authorities in their fields. The topics covered by CT-N range throughout history, government, and civics.
Connecticut Supreme Court Historical Society	Connecticut Supreme Court Historical Society's purpose is to promote and preserve the state's judicial and constitutional tradition. Their site offers numerous resources and databases for research related to State Supreme Court cases and other topics related to CT law.
CT Women's Hall of Fame	Discover Connecticut's remarkable women and the power of their stories! Our Inductees' histories form the foundation of all of our educational resources. Each inductee page has biographical information along with relevant links and additional audio/video materials. You can browse the inductees alphabetically, by category (area of achievement) or by time period.
Gilder Lehrman Institute of American History	Information sorted by era; online exhibitions; primary sources available from their extensive collection; multimedia including video series. Specific resources for teachers. Subscriptions to the website are free for all K-12 teachers.
NY Public Library Digital Collections	This site, featuring more than 800,000 digital items, is a living database with new materials added every day, featuring prints, photographs, maps, manuscripts, streaming video, and more.
Osher Map Library : Osher Map Library and Smith Center for Cartographic Education (OML) at the University of Southern Maine	With nearly half a million cartographic items, the collections housed within the are global in scope and date back to 1475. Currently there are over 75,000 items (maps, atlases, rare books, posters, games, etc.) available to view freely online for educational and research purposes
Ken Burns in the Classroom Collection	Ken Burns and his collaborators have been creating historical documentary films for more than forty years. Known for a signature style that brings primary source documents, images, and archival video footage to life on screen, these films present the opportunity to pose thought-provoking questions for students, and introduce new ideas, perspectives, and primary sources.
Chronicling America	Search America's historic newspaper pages from 1770-1963 or use the U.S. Newspaper Directory to find information about American newspapers published between 1690-present. Chronicling America is sponsored jointly by the National Endowment for the Humanities and the Library of Congress.
Ad*Access : Duke University Library Repository	Over 7,000 U.S. and Canadian advertisements covering five product categories - Beauty and Hygiene, Radio, Television, Transportation, and World War II propaganda - dated between 1911 and 1955.

Europeana	This website offers access to millions of items from providing institutions across Europe. Discover artworks, books, music, and videos on art, newspapers, archaeology, fashion, science, sport, and much more.
American Archive of Public Broadcasting	The American Archive of Public Broadcasting contains more than 50,000 hours of digitized public broadcasting programs and original materials.

Lesson Six: Writing an Annotated Bibliography for History Day

GOAL: Understand how to write an Annotated Bibliography for Connecticut History Day

- I. Objective: Students will be able to write a properly formatted and annotated bibliography for their History Day project.
- II. Procedures
 - a. Start of Class: Students will begin by discussing the importance of identifying sources for their research.
 - What is a bibliography? Why do writers have to follow specific formats for citing their sources? Which format will be required for their project? What is an annotation?
 - Show students “What’s an Annotated Bibliography? \(Overview\)” and the “What’s an Annotated bibliography? \(Citations\)”
 - b. Students will review the teacher-preferred style (MLA or Chicago) and begin to format their initial list of sources.
 - c. Show students “What’s an Annotated Bibliography? \(Annotations\)” and have them add annotations to their existing source citations by addressing these questions:
 - How did they use the source?
 - How did the source help them to understand the topic?
 - d. Students will continue to add sources and annotations as they proceed through their project’s research and development. Students must edit and revise the Annotated Bibliography before final submission of their project.
- III. Materials
 - a. NHD website Annotated Bibliography page
 - b. Annotation Sentence Starters
 - c. Annotated Bibliography Peer Review Sheet
- IV. Evaluations
 - a. Participation in discussion about annotated bibliographies
 - b. Completion of an annotated bibliography
 - c. Participation in peer review
 - d. Completion of Writing the Annotated Bibliography Checklist

Annotation Sentence Starters

Your annotations are expected to be 1-3 sentences in length. Each annotation explains:

- How the source helped you to understand the topic
- How you used the source

Try some of these sentence starters to prevent using “This source...” every time.

Remember, if you are working in a group, your annotations should use words like “we” and “our.” If you are working alone, your annotations should include “I” and “my.”

- This book helped me/us understand...
- This document was important to my/our topic because...
- After reading this newspaper article I/we...
- I/We used this speech to...
- This website was...
- I/We found out that...
- This memoir provided me/us with...
- I/We learned that...
- This manuscript showed me/us that...
- I/We had a new perspective on our topic after reading this source because...
- This interview talked about...
- This book helped me/us to understand our topic better because...

Stuck? Feel like you’re repeating yourself?

- Pretend that you’re describing the book/website/photo to your teacher. Try describing the author’s point of view in the source.
- Did the source surprise or shock you? Tell us more.
- Was this one of your favorite sources? Tell us why.
- Be specific. Was there one particularly important part of the source?
- Did the source lead you to new sources? Explain which ones.

Peer Review Annotated Bibliography Worksheet

Name: _____ Date: _____

Directions: Use this worksheet to guide your peer review of an annotated bibliography for National History Day's 2024 theme Turning Points in History.

Whose annotated bibliography are you evaluating?

1. Which style format is used (MLA or Chicago)?
 - a. Do you notice any inconsistencies with the citation formatting?
2. Is the annotated bibliography divided into PRIMARY SOURCES and SECONDARY SOURCES?
3. Are the sources alphabetized within each section?
4. Does each source have a brief (1-3 sentences) annotation explaining how the source was used and how it helped the person understand the topic?
5. What other suggestions can you offer?

Lesson Seven: Writing a Thesis Statement for History Day

GOAL: Understand how to write a thesis statement for Connecticut History Day

- V. Objective: Students will understand how to write a thesis statement for Connecticut History Day by participating in writing exercises to hone their writing skills.
- VI. Procedures
- Start of Class: Students will begin class by discussing what they know about thesis statements
 - What is a thesis statement? What is the goal of a thesis statement? What should a good thesis statement include?*
 - Show students the 'What's Your Point?' video
 - Students will use the handout Comparing Thesis Statements for examples of thesis statements and guidance on how to begin writing. This handout has examples for the Junior (gr. 6-8) and Senior (gr. 9-12) Divisions.
 - Students will practice identifying the characteristics of a thesis statement and revising an example thesis. Students will share their results with a partner, group, or class.
 - Students will draft a thesis statement based on their research and have classmates' peer-review using the NHD Thesis and Historical Argument worksheet and the Thesis Statement Peer Review worksheet.
 - Does the thesis statement define the topic and stance? Is there a clear argument to the thesis statement? What do you like about this thesis? What can be changed to improve the thesis?
- VII. Materials
- Comparing Thesis Statements
 - Elements of an Effective Thesis Statement
 - NHD Thesis and Historical Argument worksheet
 - Thesis Statement Peer Review worksheet
- VIII. Evaluations
- Participation in discussion about thesis statements
 - Completion of thesis and historical argument activity
 - Participation in peer review
 - Completion of the Writing a Thesis Statement Checklist

National History Day in Minnesota 2023

ELEMENTS OF AN EFFECTIVE THESIS STATEMENT

A thesis statement is a promise to the reader or viewer of your project as to what your project will prove. It is the answer to your basic research question. It is a key element in making people understand your position or point of view.

An effective thesis statement for your History Day project, regardless of the category in which you are competing, should have all of the following elements:

1. It should clearly state your topic.
2. It should define the parameters (the focus) of your research.
3. It should clearly and explicitly relate your topic to the NHD theme.
4. It should be written in the form of an argument rather than a statement of fact.
5. It should convey why your topic is important or significant. How did it impact history?

The following is a typical draft of a thesis statement associated with a previous year's theme of "Breaking Barriers in History". The author has tried to incorporate all five elements of an effective thesis in his statement. Yet, it should not be considered a finished product. It will require further refining and editing to make sure that it delivers the thesis in the most concise and most effective way. The appropriate length of your thesis will depend on your category's limit on word count, but generally it should be 2-3 sentences.

TOPIC: John Brown's Trial

John Brown's trial, after his capture at Harpers Ferry, sparked the Civil War, which hastened the abolition of slavery in the United States thus breaking the major barrier to the attainment of equality and citizenship for people of color. Brown's trial was a national media event. During this trial, Brown's passionate denunciation of the legal existence of slavery and his insistence that it could only be ended by force further fueled the national debate, already raging on this issue. His remarks, as well as his conviction and subsequent execution, were all prominently reported in every major newspaper in the country on both sides of the Mason-Dixon Line. These reports inflamed passions and sharpened the division between the north and south on the issue of slavery, making further compromise impossible. When modifying the barrier ceased to be an option, the only thing left to decide was merit of the barrier's very existence. Brown was the key player forcing this decision to be made. His efforts changed America forever.

Can you find the five elements of a thesis in this draft?

1. Topic: _____

2. Parameters of research: _____

3. Relation to the theme: _____

4. Author's Argument: _____

5. Significance: _____

Thesis Challenge

Revise the statement to make it clearer and more concise (using only the words you really need) while maintaining all five of the needed elements.

(There is no one right answer! It is a matter of judgment.)

[illegible]

- * Can your classmate find all five key elements in your thesis statement?
- * Does your classmate's identification of those elements on the list agree with what you identified as the elements?

To see how the author of the draft sees the elements consult the box below.

1.	Topic:	John Brown's trial after his raid on Harpers Ferry
2.	Parameters of research:	The effects of the trial on the abolition of slavery
3.	Relation to the theme:	It led to breaking the main barrier to the attainment of rights by people of color.
4.	Author's Argument:	The trial made further compromise impossible
5.	Significance:	thus setting off the Civil War. It led to the end of slavery in the United States.

NHD Thesis and Historical Argument

Your historical argument states the central point or focus of your project in two or three sentences. It is sometimes called a thesis or claim. Historians create historical arguments after carefully analyzing evidence from the past. The evidence that supports your argument will come from the primary and secondary sources that you discover during your research.

Your argument should reflect your analysis of the historical evidence that you gathered. Your historical argument must make a meaningful connection to the theme and show why your topic is significant in history. It must be incorporated into your project and be clear to those who read or view it. However, labeling your historical argument in or on your project is not required.

Example for the theme, Breaking Barriers in History: The 1919 Treaty of Versailles subjected Germany to significant economic penalties. The treaty created an economic barrier between Germany and the rest of Europe, which led to hyperinflation and, when coupled with the Great Depression, the rise of the Nazi Party.

(NHD Contest Rule Book, 2020. p. 8)

Part A: Crafting a Strong Thesis

Step 1: Historical Context

Once you have selected a topic, identify some background information to help establish historical context.

Who were the individuals/groups involved?
When did this occur?
Where did this occur?
Why did this occur?
What was happening locally in relation to your topic?
What was happening nationally/globally in relation to your topic?
What social norms/cultural beliefs played a role in the events related to your topic?

Courtesy of Utah History Day

Step 2: Gathering Historical Evidence

Locate and identify 3-4 primary sources or events specific to your topic. Consider documents, events, speeches, images, newspapers or addresses, etc. that can be a source of information. Consider using the National Archives Document Analysis Worksheets to complete your exploration once you've chosen your documents.

Step 3: Analyzing the Evidence

Analyze your primary source research and summarize each piece of evidence. Examining primary documents related to your topic at the beginning of your research will encourage you to draw your own conclusions about your topic and how it connects to the theme.

Primary Source/Event (include where you found the information)	Summary in your own words	Analysis (How does this source/event impact or relate to your topic?)

Step 4: Developing Your Argument: Use your analysis to develop your historical argument. Keep the theme in mind as you are fitting these pieces of evidence together. Review the example below, and then complete the organizer for your topic.

Ask a peer to read your thesis statement and identify each element by:

- Drawing a circle around the topic
- Drawing a box around the parameters
- Drawing a star above the theme words
- Underlining the argument and considering an opposition to the argument
(If this activity is completed digitally, students can assign different colors and highlight the text)

Revised thesis: Review the feedback you received on your initial thesis draft. Make improvements to the statement here.

Part B: Supporting Your Thesis by Thinking Like a Historian

Now that you've identified your argument, you will need more research to support your claims. Consider who was involved, what impact was made on society (or a portion of society), and what was gained or lost because of your topic.

When selecting secondary sources, you must consider several factors to identify potential biases and the overall credibility. These elements will help you better understand the author's interpretation.

- Author's background, purpose and potential biases
- Intended audience
- Identify the author's thesis and arguments
- What primary sources did the author rely upon?
- What facts were presented by the author?
- What opinions were presented by the author?
- Is the source reliable and convincing? Why or why not?
- How does the source relate to your topic? How does it add to what you already know about your topic?

Part C: Explain the Historical Significance

YOU make the case for why your topic is significant in history and how it relates to the annual theme. Consider the message you want your audience to understand based on your conclusions. Be sure to provide evidence to support your conclusions.

- Short Term Outcomes (What changed immediately or soon after? What didn't change?)
- Long Term Outcomes (Can you show logical connections between your topic and events 10, 20, or more years later?)
- Why does this topic matter to your audience?

Part D: Putting It All Together

The magic happens within a History Day project when you can synthesize your research and analysis into a cohesive argument that is supported by relevant primary and secondary sources. You're on target when you have:

- A well-formulated historical argument supported by thorough analysis, and the annual theme woven throughout the project.
- Integrated body of credible research into a fully developed historical argument.
- Used primary sources to develop the historical argument.
- Analyzed the short-term and long-term causes of the historical event(s).
- Integrated multiple perspectives throughout the historical argument.
- Verified that all historical information is accurate.
- Drawn an evidence-based conclusion about the topic's significance in history and analyzed the topic's short-term and long-term impact.
- Ensured your ideas, analysis, argument, and conclusions are original and persuasive.

Peer Review Thesis Statement Worksheet

Name: _____ Date: _____

Directions: Use this worksheet to guide your peer review of a thesis statement for National History Day's 2024 theme Turning Points in History.

Whose thesis are you evaluating? _____

6. What is the strongest or best part of their thesis statement?

a. Why is it the strongest or best part?

7. What portion of the thesis statement needs work?

a. Why and/or how does it need work?

8. If you had to rewrite their thesis statement in 1 to 3 sentences, what would it be?

Lesson Eight: Planning a Project

GOAL: Create a project outline to be used for creating a final project

- I. Objective: Students will create a project outline to be used for creating a final project by using the Project Planning worksheet to storyboard their final projects.
- II. Procedures:
 - a. Start of Class: Students will gather their research and thesis statement to be used in helping them assemble their final projects.
 - b. Show students the Project Organization video. This video will be helpful in demonstrating how to organize a project and how to select the best evidence to support their argument.
 - c. Using the Project Planning worksheet, students will begin to lay out or storyboard their projects with the goal of finding the beginning, middle, and end of their narrative and help them figure out what research and work still needs to be completed.
 - d. Based on the Project Planning worksheet, students will begin to assemble their final projects.
 - e. Review with students the concept of Student Voice and discuss ways they can verify their own voice is prominent within their projects.
 - f. Students may benefit from viewing NHD videos as they progress into their research.

 - b. Creation of a final Connecticut History Day project

Project Planning Worksheet

Name: _____ Date: _____

Directions: Use this worksheet to guide your final project outline for National History Day's 2024 theme Turning Points in History.

Thesis:

Supporting Arguments for Thesis:

BEFORE

Historical Context:

- What important information does your reader need to know?
- What happened before your topic to influence it?
- What was happening locally or globally to give context to your topic?

Build-up:

- Who are the "characters" involved?
- What ideas or events led up to your main event?
- What led up to your topic?

Remember to present only the information that is REALLY important to understanding what led to your topic.

DURING

In this portion of your project you need to get at the main event, or heart, of your topic. Be specific when you explain:

- What happened?
- When did it happen?
- How and why it happened?
- Who was involved or affected?

Analyze your evidence and present your ideas.

Address multiple perspectives.

AFTER

Short Term: What changed right away as a result of your topic? Were these changed good or bad? Was everyone affected the same?

Long Term: What happened years after? How did your topic change history?

Historical Significance: Why is your topic important in history? Why is it still important today?

Category Resources

Here are some planning tools specific to each category. Regardless of the planning tools you use, it is crucial that you carefully read the General and Category Specific rules in the NHD Rule Book and consult the evaluation form for your chosen category.

Lesson Nine: Writing a Process Paper for History Day

GOAL: Understand how to write a Process Paper for Connecticut History Day

- I. Objective: Students will understand how to write a Process Paper by participating in writing exercises to hone their writing skills.
- II. Procedures
 - a. Start of Class: Students will begin working on a process paper for their NHD project using the NHD Rule Book as a guide:
 - The Process Paper should not be a list of answers to the questions suggested as prompts.
 - b. Show students the Process Paper video.
 - c. Students will review the example of a Process Papers to understand what is needed and what the goal of the Process Paper is.
 - d. Students will use the How To Write Your Process Paper to begin drafting their own Process Papers.
 - e. Students will go through a peer review exercise using the Process Paper Peer Review Worksheet to evaluate and improve each other's work.
- III. Materials
 - a. Process Paper Example
 - b. How To Write Your Process Paper
 - c. Process Paper Peer Review Worksheet
 - d. NHD Rulebook
- IV. Evaluations
 - a. Completion of a Process Paper
 - b. Participation in the peer review exercise
 - c. Completion of the Writing a Process Paper Checklist

Process Paper Example (word count 492):

Process Paper

After watching the film Bridge of Spies (2015), we realized the film's story connected to this year's History Day theme, Debate and Diplomacy: Successes, Failures, Consequences, and we were excited to research the Cold War US-Soviet Spy Exchange. We conducted initial research about the Cold War and dug deeper into the conflicts between the US and USSR. We uncovered more about the swap of the American and Soviet spies, which led to us crafting an informative and creative performance. Not only did this make for an exciting project, but we also learned some important life lessons. This experience taught us that even the harshest of enemies could come together and put aside their differences to solve a problem that will help a more significant number of people in the end.

Conducting initial research was not as challenging for us as past History Day projects. At first, many of the sources we took notes on were secondary sources. Later, we found many important primary sources, for instance, a propaganda video from the US government and two essential documents. One is the transcripts for Powers' trial in Moscow, and the other is Powers' journal from his time in jail. These primary source quotes and transcripts helped accurately inform some of our scenes.

Additionally, we contacted and interviewed Francis Gary Powers' son, Gary Powers Jr. He informed us that Gary Powers' cellmate was a KGB plant, among many exciting insights! In fact, after our interview, we attended his presentation at the University of Connecticut. After attending, we changed some of our performance to make it more factually accurate. The information we found in our research led to the dialogue in our performance. Most of our dialogue for James Donovan, the American negotiator, are actual quotes from him!

We decided to use the performance format based on our successful experience performing for History Day the last two years. This was an effective way to explore this topic because we enjoy acting and scriptwriting - the performance brings the drama to life. Our process involved finding sources together and then splitting up to read and take notes. Usually, if we did more notetaking for a source, the other would have to do more annotations. We think performing history is intriguing and fun to present important information (like Hamilton or Les Misérables). Since our weekday schedule was so busy, most of our work was budgeted on weekends to ensure that our project would be complete. To-Do lists and schedules were a must to stay on top of our project due dates.

Our project connects to the theme, Debate, and Diplomacy: Successes, Failures, Consequences, through dialogue. The countries could successfully exchange the two men because of the negotiators and government officials, especially James Donovan. Diplomacy was crucial in returning Soviet Spy Rudolf Ivanovich Abel and American pilot Francis Gary Powers to their home countries. This demonstrated that even the harshest enemies could be diplomatic to solve critical debates without harmful consequences.

Process Paper: A How-To

The process paper is one component of the required written materials. These materials must be typed on plain white paper and stapled in the top left corner (except for websites in which these materials are uploaded as PDFs). Assembly is in the following order: title page, process paper, and annotated bibliography. Do NOT enclose these items in a cover or binder.

Title Page

The title page includes the title of the entry, name(s) of the student(s) who developed the entry, the age division and category of the entry, and word counts/media run time. Do NOT include any additional information or illustrations on the title page. A good title for your entry is important. It will quickly introduce your topic and help the viewer understand your point of view. Ideas from your theme ought to be considered for your title. Please consult the NHD Rule Book p. 18-19 for specific requirements of each category's title page and examples of title pages.

Process Paper

The process paper is not a summary of the topic. It is a reflection statement of no more than 500 words explaining how you selected the topic, conducted your research, and developed your entry. It concludes with a paragraph identifying your thesis and describing how the topic fits this year's theme and why it is important in history. Students should not format this as a list of questions and answers, but as an essay using correct paragraph structure.

The process paper must include the following components:

- how you chose your topic and how your project relates to the History Day theme
- how you conducted your research
- how you selected your presentation category and created your project
- your historical argument/thesis statement
- how your topic is significant in history

How to Write Your Process Paper

One of the last items you will complete for your NHD project is the process paper. Judges read the process paper to get a window into how you created your entry. You should provide details of your work. Use “I” statements and show how your topic connects to the theme. The chart below is meant to help you compose your sentences and put together your process paper. Remember that your process paper cannot be longer than 500 words! Every History Day project must include a Process Paper.

Process Paper Peer Review Worksheet

Name: _____ Date: _____

Directions: Use this worksheet to guide your peer review of a Process Paper for National History Day's 2024 theme Turning Points in History.

Whose Process Paper are you evaluating? _____

As you read your classmate's Process Paper, please answer the following questions thoroughly to give effective feedback AND to demonstrate your review skills.

Paragraph One:

1. Does the writer briefly introduce and explain their History Day topic in a few sentences?
2. Does the writer briefly explain their process for choosing this topic?
3. Does the writer explain how the topic relates to this year's theme?
4. Please give one piece of constructive criticism for the writer. For example, is it too wordy, too brief, contains grammar or spelling errors, or are you left with questions?

Paragraph Two:

1. Does the writer adequately explain how the research was conducted? For instance, are the following questions addressed: Where did you go to find your sources? Did you visit a major library? Did you conduct any interviews? What sources were most useful? What problems did you encounter in your quest to find sources?
2. Please give one piece of constructive criticism for the writer related to this paragraph.

Paragraph Three:

1. Does the writer address the following questions?
 - a. Why did you choose the category that you did?

- b. How did you actually create your project and what materials did you use?
 - c. Was there significant meaning behind any of the materials used (e.g., selection of a particular prop, choosing the color scheme for your exhibit, incorporating music from the era in your documentary)?
 - d. What was the most enjoyable or frustrating part of creating your project?
2. Please give one way that this paragraph could be improved or made more complete. For example, is more information needed or did the writer spend too much time on one aspect of the project?

Paragraph Four:

- 1. After reading this paragraph, do you know what the writer's historical argument/thesis statement is for their History Day project?
 - a. Please write down what you think their thesis statement is.
- 2. Please give one piece of constructive criticism that the writer can use to make this a more successful paragraph.

Paragraph Five:

- 1. Does the writer explain the topic's impact or significance in history?
- 2. Please give one piece of constructive criticism that the writer can use to make this a more successful paragraph.

Overall Structure:

Does the writer use correct paragraph structure, avoiding the use of the writing prompts as numbered questions or as headings?

Lesson Ten: Preparing for a History Day Contest Day

GOAL: Understand what to expect on a Connecticut History Day Contest Day

- I. Objective: Students will understand the expectations and procedures of a contest day.
- II. Procedures
 - a. Start of Class: Students will review their project category components and verify they have completed everything.
 - b. Students will review expectations and the schedule for Contest Day
 - c. Students will practice for the interview with the judges

What to Expect on an In-Person Contest Day

Students attending the CHD Regional Contests will have their projects judged by educators, history professionals, alumni, and volunteers as they share their projects about Turning Points in History. At the end of the day, students will know if they are heading to the State Contest in May.

Whether this is your first contest season or your last, there are always tips on how to get the most out of contest day. Regional Contests aren't just about presenting your project. This is your chance to meet new friends, experience new things, and interact with others who are passionate about history. Below you can find information and tips on what to expect on contest day and what you can do to get the most out of it.

What to Expect

When you arrive at your regional contest, there will be some parts that are the same for every student across the state. You'll check in for the contest and attend the Welcome Ceremony, you'll present your project, and you'll have the chance to view other student work. Each contest has a variety of other opportunities for students to take advantage of as well.

Contest Day is an exciting and generally long day! Students arrive for registration between 7:30 a.m. and 8:15 a.m. Students will meet with the judges between 9:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m.; larger categories will have an additional run-off (finals) round between 12:30-2:00 p.m. The day concludes with the awards ceremony that usually ends around 3:30 p.m. While we understand this makes for a long day, we have to give the judges time to complete the evaluation forms.

What to Bring:

Students competing in the Documentary, Exhibit, and Performance categories must bring THREE copies of their paperwork (title page, process paper, annotated bibliography) on contest day.

Students in the Paper and Website categories should bring ONE copy.

For those participating in the Documentary category, bring your project in multiple formats (USB drive, access to cloud-based storage, saved on laptop/tablet). If you cannot play your documentary, the judges cannot evaluate it.

Depending on what your project is, you are expected to bring:

- Three copies of your process paper and annotated bibliography for Exhibits, Performances, and Documentaries.

- Even though you have already submitted your website or paper, you may want to bring an extra copy of your paperwork for your own reference.
- Your props, costumes, and script if you are presenting a Performance.
- A copy of your documentary on a thumb drive, or laptop/tablet for Documentary students.
- You may want to bring extra materials-- like tape, scissors, etc.- to do any minor repairs on your exhibit, costumes, or props.

Along with presenting your Exhibit, Performance, Documentary, Website or Paper, you also will go through an interview about your project. This is one of the things that students get most nervous about. Judges are excited to meet students and learn more about your research. Remember, you are not judged on your interview. Try to relax and enjoy sharing about your work!

At each contest, students can:

- Purchase a Connecticut History Day souvenir (t-shirt, hat, etc.)
- Attend a living history or musical performance
- Sit in on other students' presentations of their projects

Some contests may have other opportunities available for students as well such as:

- Campus Tours at University of Connecticut (Mansfield Contest), Southern Connecticut State University (New Haven Contest), Sacred Heart University (Fairfield Contest), Central Connecticut State University (State Contest)
- Food Trucks, Dining Hall access, and food for sale
- Movie Screenings
- Performances by living history performers or musical groups
- Playing board games

Finals (Run-Off) Rounds

In some instances, a category may have so many participants that there needs to be two rounds of judging. In these cases, judges select up to two entries from each group. The entries selected continue to a second "run-off" round. Students in the paper, exhibit, and website categories do not need to be present for the Run-Off Round. Performance and documentary students MUST be present for the Run-Off Round but there will be no interviews; an announcement of the students continuing to the run-off round of judging for these categories will be made around lunchtime.

Participants do not need to stay the entire day and are not required to attend the Awards Ceremony. Please make sure to check if you are in a run-off category. Leaving early (performance, documentary) or removing your exhibit early may remove your work from consideration for a prize.

Tips for Making the Most of Your Contest

There is a lot to do on a contest day. There can also be a lot of down time between when you arrive, present your project, and the awards ceremony. To make the most of your day, take advantage of the opportunities listed above and consider the tips listed below. On contest day, consider bringing the following with you:

- Lunch and/or snacks
- Cash, most contests have food or snacks available for purchase. Many have restaurants nearby.
- Cash to purchase a Connecticut History Day souvenir (t-shirt, hat, etc.)
- A book, homework, a game, or playing cards
- Your phone to take pictures throughout the day. Make sure to share them on social media by using the hashtag #CHD2024 and #CTHistoryDay!

During contest day, we recommend that you:

- Be an audience member and view other student projects
- Attend the fun events happening during your contest
- Attend the Awards Ceremony at the end of the day

Contest day is all about what you make of it. So have fun and enjoy your time at Connecticut History Day!

Your Interview with the Judges: Tips and Sample Questions

Your project will be evaluated by a team of judges consisting of volunteers who are historians, educators or have an interest in history. They will work as a team to evaluate your research, writing and creativity according to the criteria in the NHD category rubrics.

You will meet with the judges on contest day for a brief interview. The purpose of the interview is to allow you to introduce your project and for the judges to gain some perspective on your process. The interview is not factored into the overall ranking of a project. Similarly, the judges cannot evaluate any information shared during an interview that is not present in the project.

General Suggestions:

- Be sure to introduce yourself. If you are part of a group, make sure each group member does so as well.
- Be confident, yet polite, in your responses. Remember YOU are the historian for this project.

Sample Questions: Judges are given sample questions to guide them but can ask other questions as well. These are some questions to help you practice and get an idea of what the interview experience is all about. You may notice that many of the questions reflect the information in your process paper, so think about how you responded about your project's process when writing that document.

1. What made you choose this topic? What made you choose this category?
2. What was your most important source, and why?
3. What was the most interesting thing you learned while researching?
4. As you did your research, what surprised you the most about this topic?
5. What did you find most difficult about doing the research for this entry?
6. How does your topic relate to the NHD theme?
7. How does your topic relate to what's going on locally or nationally at the time?
8. How did your primary sources help you understand this topic?
9. Were you able to visit any historical organizations or locations to conduct research?
10. Briefly describe how you created your exhibit/documentary/website/performance?
11. What were the most important consequences of your topic?
12. Why is this topic significant in history?
13. How did you divide the work among group members?
14. I noticed you selected ___ video clip/photo to include in your project. Tell us how you found it and why you chose to include it.
15. Is there anything you weren't asked that you would like to talk about?
